Today, UPN and Paramount Network Television will announce that this is the final season of STAR TREK: ENTERPRISE on UPN.

Star Trek has been an important part of UPN's history, airing on this network virtually every week for more than 10 years. ENTERPRISE has upheld the traditions of dynamic storytelling and high-quality production values that have become synonymous with the franchise.

All of us at UPN would like to thank Rick Berman, Brannon Braga and the incredibly talented cast for creating an engaging, new dimension to the Star Trek legacy on UPN. We look forward to working with them, and our partners at Paramount Network Television, on a send-off that salutes the franchise's valued contributions to UPN and satisfies its loyal viewers. We hope you will join us by helping to promote the final episodes of ENTERPRISE and bring this series to a close in a big way.

As we look to the future, the UPN brand is stronger than ever. We have a clear vision and direction for this network. In just the past year, we've seen AMERICA'S NEXT TOP MODEL emerge as a bonafide, homegrown hit for UPN, and our two new dramas, KEVIN HILL and VERONICA MARS, have received more critical acclaim than any shows in UPN's history. As a result of this success, the creative community has responded by making UPN a key destination for their top projects, producers and talent. Now we're in the midst of another tremendous development season, and we pledge to continue to produce innovative, quality programming that will build on our momentum.

We appreciate your continued support as we work together to move UPN forward.

Sincerely,

Dawn Ostroff
